

I am taxpayer aged twenty three. My general complaint with the FCC is the persecution of Howard Stern and his radio show, which I and millions of other listeners around the country enjoy everyday. I am evenmore disturbed to learn that Oprah Winfrey, on television and during an afternoon timeslot, discussed some of the same topics as the ones the FCC is fining the Stern show for. Now I ask the FCC whose program do you think is seen or heard by more kids per day, a radio show that ends during school hours or a television broadcast that is on in millions of homes in America in the middle of the afternoon? I do not agree with the FCC's double standard. If you are going to take our first amendment rights away from us, then at least take them from everyone, no matter how much money they have or power in television. I am just one listener but there are millions more like me all over our country.
